

Elizabeth has everything that everyone wants, but she realized that is not what she wants, she decides to put an end to her marriage and go in the other way, and like that she goes on the trip of her life, where she is going to get to know herself and what she really wants.

Elizabeth Gilbert

American writer Elizabeth Gilbert was born on July 18, 1969, in Waterbury, Connecticut. After studying Political Science at New York University, she worked in various trades, including those of cook and waitress.

An admirer of Charles Dickens, Henry James, Walt Whitman, or Dylan Thomas, Gilbert published her first book in the late 1990s, "Pilgrims" (1997), a collection of short stories.

Later, Elizabeth published a book on the naturalist Eustace Conway entitled "The Last American Man" (2002) and "Eat, Pray, Love" (2006) autobiographical volume on self-discovery after a personal crisis turned into a film of the same name with the leading role of Julia Roberts.

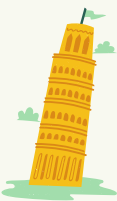

Liz Robert

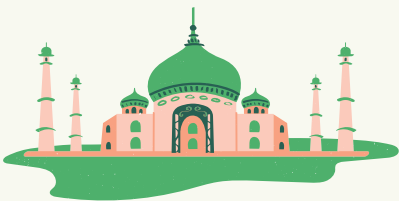

She reaches a point in her life where she gets tired of commitment, of not knowing what is being single, of searching for happiness and of living safely, of that unsatisfactory monotony.

That's why she decides to undertake a one-year trip to Europe and Asia; places where she gets to know herself, and she learn from new cultures and people who teach her to be stronger and more independent.

EAT – Italy

We see Liz starting her trip to Italy, in this part she wants to eat the word, so she starts to eat a lot, different typical dishes from Italy. She starts to gain weight but it doesn't matter because she is enjoying herself

PRAY – India

After eating the word in Italy, she goes to India, where she is going to connect with her soul and spirit. She meditated a lot, learning of life and in this way, she's having a clearing image of her life

LOVE – Bali

Finally, her trip is ending and her final destiny is Bali. With all the culture she meets Felipe, with him she feels comfortable and finally, without looking for it, she found love.

(In the book she feels in love with a woman)
